Villagers protest plans to fell trees on lower Main St.

By WENDY HANSCOM

Sometime this week representatives of Bethel's engineering consultant firm will begin planting "witness stakes" along lower Main Street. The stakes will mark the limits of the proposed road widening project—and they will probably seal the fate of at least two or three of the large trees that currently line the street.

If the trees do come down, it will be over the objections of many village residents.

Sixty Bethel residents turned out at last Tuesday's informational meeting on this summer's sewer work. Most were there to protest the possible destruction of neighborhood trees, which are slated to fall to make way for the wider street, new parking spaces and sidewalks that will be installed along with the new storm and sewer lines.

Over half of the standing-room-only crowd in the selectmen's meeting room was made up of residents and businesspeople from lower Main Street.

They, and other residents, questioned not only why the trees must be cut down, but also the manner in which the selectmen went about making the decision.

Jack Greig asked who decided to widen the street.

"That was the decision of the board of selectmen," said Town Manager Madeleine Henley. "When they made that decision they didn't think only of what the immediate abutter wanted. They have to think of the good of the town as a whole."

Lower Main Street business owner Melody Bonnema called for the selectmen to explain why the road needed widening for parking. "We have plans to expand our parking area," she said. "You don't need to do this for us."

"Historically, we have had go-arounds in this room for years about inadequate parking in regards to the Sudbury (Inn) area," responded First Selectman Arlan Jodrey. "I hear all you neighbors here tonight saying there's no problem, but we've sat here many, many nights and argued the same thing we're taking about here tonight—no parking. What we did was try to help the people down there by getting them more parking. There's about 10 houses down there, but we're trying to represent 2,500 people. And we have to decide what is best for the majority of taxpayers in town."

But several lower Main Street residents maintained there were no parking problems. Some said it was

FADING SHADE—At least two or three of the large trees along lower Main Street are slated to come down as part of this summer's phase of Bethel's Downtown Revitalization Project. Plans call for the roadway to be widened, for parking spaces to be established along the road and for the sidewalks to be lowered to the level of the roadway. According to the Bethel selectmen, the doomed trees are either in the towns's right of way, or their roots are so close they will be too badly damaged by the summer's digging. The selectmen originally estimated that five or six of the big trees would have to come down, but that estimate has recently been halved. Sixty residents and businesspeople attended last week's informational meeting on the summer's work, many to protest the loss of the trees.

Merton Brown blasts SAD #44 image, attitudes

By WENDY HANSCOM

SAD #44 school board director Merton Brown told fellow directors Monday night that the district has a severe image problem—and that problem was caused in large part by the attitude of some of the directors themselves, and of some district employees.

In a prepared statement, Brown urged administrators and board members to take the initiative to combat any negative images triggered by two recent student suspensions and citizen complaints at the annual budget meeting in May.

"As I start my tenth year on this board I certainly don't remember a time when the district has been in such a bad light," Brown said.

Brown said he was worried that if the district's image was not improved, district voters might turn down the $4.9 million expansion planned for the Crescent Park School.

"We will be asking the voters of this district a very important question on Aug. 25—building a new school," Brown said. "I fear that if we don't do something to put us in better light some voters will be reacting to the image rather than the issue at hand."

Image problems for SAD #44 came to a head last Monday, when Augusta Yates, 14, of Andover filed a civil suit in Oxford County Superior Court against the district. Yates was suspended from school this spring for fighting on a school bus. She was arrested for criminal

OFFICIALS CALL COVERAGE UNFAIR

SAD #44 Superintendent Dewaine Craig and Telstar High School Principal Ted Davis have written to The Citizen arguing that last week's reporting on their handling of recent student discipline matters was inaccurate and unfair. trespass by Bethel Chief of Police Dale Bellman after coming to school on her second day of suspension.

In a second case, the family of Ryan Stowell, 18, of Locke Mills had planned to attend Monday's board meeting to protest the way Stowell's suspension was handled by district administrators.

(Stowell's family did not attend Monday's meeting, but instead said they would appear with their attorney at Tuesday's policy committee meeting to demand changes in the school's disciplinary policies.)

Brown said Monday that the two incidents are "water over the dam" and should be settled in court.

"Let's not stand in the way of individual rights," Brown said. "We need to let the system work." He cautioned, however, "Those that choose to talk with the press need to weigh their words carefully."

Young Irish rovers, green and orange, hike here in harmony

By MARK SHANAHAN

Officials at the Maine Conservation School in Woodstock were delighted Sunday when 12 young lads from Northern Ireland showed up for an open house at the 35-year-old school of environmental studies.

The students, from Newry, Ireland, took a brief time-out from their two-week hiking and camping trip to attend Sunday's event at the school's picturesque campus along the shores of Lake Christopher.

"This is really great," said Irishman Trevor Quinn, one of three counselors accompanying the students on their outdoor expedition.

Prior to Sunday, the students, who range in age from 12 to 16 years old, spent five grueling days hiking a stretch of the Appalachian Trail from Shelburne, N.H. to Grafton Notch.

"It was more difficult than we expected," Quinn said. "There were roots and stones and boulders underfoot. It was steep, too, both up and down. We never could get a rhythm going."

Though perhaps more rugged than they had anticipated, the conditions were exactly what Quinn and his fellow counselors were hoping for when they accepted Newry Selectman Steve Wight's invitation

Bethel couple burned in camper gas explosion

By WENDY HANSCOM

A Bethel couple camping in Freeport suffered serious burns, when propane gas exploded Saturday inside their camper trailer.

Richard W. Carpenter, 55, and his wife Marilyn A. Carpenter, 62, are both hospitalized in Maine Medical Center. The couple have recently moved to Bethel from Litchfield.

Carpenter was listed in critical condition Monday, and his wife in satisfactory, according to Martha Mann of the hospital's public information office.

Richard Shepard, investigator for the State Fire Marshall's Office, said Richard Carpenter received second-degree burns on about 70 percent of his body in the explosion. Carpenter's wife sustained second-degree burns on 10 to 15 percent of her body, Shepard said.

Investigators are still trying to determine what ignited the gas, but they know where it came from, Shepard said.

"Mr. Carpenter had removed the LP fired hot water heater and the LP line had not been capped," Shepard said. "This allowed LP gas into the passenger compartment of the camper."

Shepard said no one else was injured when the 20-foot camper exploded.

Trees will still be growing in Bethel

Bethel's green and pleasant lower Main Street will be less green soon, and, in the minds of many, much less pleasant.

But in the long run, the summer's revitalization work will benefit the entire town, and outweigh the temporary loss of greenery in that stretch of the village.

It will certainly be sad to see the old trees come down, even if in the end only a few must go. Lower Main Street will be a bit bald for a few years, and the neighborhood will inevitably lose something of its soft, intimate scale.

But the road as it exists has become a hazard. Sit on the deck of the Sudbury Inn on any summer evening, and watch the ebb and flow of human and vehicular traffic: Out-of-town drivers poke erratically along trying to figure out where they're going or trying to find parking spaces, local adolescents "cruise" along far too fast, pedestrians wander across the road like it was the quiet and safe back road it appears, bicyclists weave through all of the above, and little kids dart from between the cars like they were playing in their own driveway.

And the whole scene is complicated still further by the relaxed meandering of yard into sidewalk into parking space into roadway.

The road needs work. Widening it to accommodate consistent parking and sidewalks, and to move both back from the through traffic, is a sound move.

Bethel is growing, and, like it or not, the traffic on lower Main Street is sure to increase. The sewer work—which is unavoidable—provides an ideal time for the town to bite the bullet and do what will inevitably need to be done to the road.

The trees will be a loss, and certainly as many as possible should be saved, but new trees will be planted, and one day they will shade and grace a safe, attractive stretch of village road.

Bethel's decorative flora took a far greater blow in the 60s, when dozens of lovely Dutch elm trees had to come down. But the village is still green and pleasant, and with wise husbandry will no doubt continue to be so.

And let's not be distracted by the "another-North-Conway" hysteria. Bethel is in no danger of becoming a North Conway clone—not with the real thing less than an hour away (and Freeport not much farther in the other direction).

But neither should we aim at being another Sturbridge Village or Williamsburg.

Real communities don't exist frozen in time. They grow and evolve, which is what Bethel is doing. And lately the town has been showing every sign of growing a graceful and well balanced way.

Perhaps we can look on the temporary loss of greenery along lower Main Street as this generation's civic sacrifice for those to come.

Letters to the Editor:

FATALISTIC VISION

To the Editor:

Last Tuesday's hearing on phase two of the sewer project and renewal of lower Main Street was uncomfortably hostile. It was also one of the most informative I have attended, mainly because the selectmen's basic philosophy of future community finally became clear.

After general issues of concern about details of the project, the issue of widening lower Main Street came up. Town officials had not thought lower Main Street would be an issue of significance for anybody besides those living on lower Main Street itself. Over 60 residents packed the room, and stayed on.

Why? Because we all felt more might be at stake here than just the widening of a street. Many folks have recently come to doubt how openly and thoroughly significant community issues have been discussed.

The vastly greater significance of the project soon became apparent as doubts were expressed about the wisdom of additional parking on both sides of the street, of the resultant widening, boulevarding, and thus fundamental change in the character of the lower Main Street.

Frustrated and angry with the insistent questioning, the chairman of the selectmen finally articulated his fatalistic vision of Bethel's future: "We will be just like North Conway," commercial pressures will soon push residents of lower Main Street from their homes; the wider street will then be what these new businesses would want.

This "planning for the future" was rightfully met with shock and resentment that an elected official would so callously presume upon the fortunes and choices of residents happily in their homes. The selectmen do not seem to have studied the larger issues inherent in their vision beyond their own location and experience. They owe us better.

There have been any number of articles written, particularly in the Boston papers, about the ills attendant to a North Conway. One could have read an update in the "Globe" of two Sundays ago. It featured an article on New England's three "North Conways" (Manchester, Vt. and Freeport being the other two) in which those towns' leaders report their major efforts now being directed towards the problems created by the unharmed development of the 1980s. While traffic creates tensions and chaos on the one hand, on the other residents decry the loss of any sense of community values. The transformation of a community into a shopping mall has crippled aesthetic values as well as natural human familiarity and interaction, and these were the very factors which drew business to these locations in the first place.

At the moment Mr. Jodrey pronounces his vision here, a number of New England towns have already thought the better of it and rejected the widening ("upgrading") in the name of progress) of community streets as being in fact bad for business. The increase in speed of the traffic results in a pace which is too fast for either safety of pedestrians or comfort of drivers to identify shops. Two-sided parking can actually make businesses less visible. All analysts agree: the problem is not so much with streets as it is with finding off-street parking. Bethel has already recognized this in part with its business parking ordinance, and the current businesses on lower Main Street have expressly complied, without quarrel. Off-street parking remains a major subject, clearly, and cannot be the sole responsibility of individual businesses. Selectman Putnam has shown some initial initiative, but he cannot do it by himself. Appoint a citizens' commission to help out.

LOON LOOKOUT—Parker Hansen, 3, of Bethel, studies a loon family on Lake Christopher, during Sunday's Open House at the Maine Conservation School. The event drew nearly 100 local residents and visitors to check out the facilities and programs, as well as at the new septic system, at the Bryant Pond campus. Upcoming programs at the school include a K-3 Community Nature Camp next week, and an Aquatic Habitat Week for 10 through 14 year olds the following week. The Community Lakes Association of Greenwood and Woodstock will hold its annual meeting at the conservation school on July 11.

At the very least, our leaders should seek out and study these other cases. Less than that is not enough anymore. Yet I am sure Mr. Jodrey feels as much anguish as anybody over some of the things which have happened to Bethel in the last decade or two, and he has served the town more steadfastly than most.

It must not be left unsaid that there is much appreciation for long term community-minded residents who have sweat and worried over the town for its years and all of theirs. And it is much out of admiration for these people that new folks have come to lend their energies to a common good, then and to come. It was not by chance that Phil Chadbourne was sought out for his thoughts, and he expressed his regret over the notion that homes in his old neighborhood might disappear. His feeling represents more than simple nostalgia; it renews for us an insight that homes are a critical element in the continuing viability of any village, businesses included.

The Town of Bethel Comprehensive Plan of 1986, adopted in Town Meeting, in fact expresses that very theme. "It is unquestionable that Bethel has an appearance and character which is appreciated by visitors to the area, and valued by citizens of the town..." "The business district, upper Church and Main Streets, has an appearance reflective of the mixed use of the area, a combination of residences and stores plus the Town Office, U.S. Post Office, banks, restaurants, professional offices and bed and breakfasts establishments."

The authors of the plan go on to say that "Bethel has been fortunate in the diligence of property owners in making their place of business attractive and in keeping with the character of the town. The conversion of the former Thunderbird Motel property (to residential) ... has been a recent improvement in Main Street's appearance ... West Bethel has made recent improvements to the Flat Road-Route 2 intersection, and, because of the combination of post office, store, church, grange hall, homes and sidewalks, has kept its identity as a village." While the plan is not legally binding, it does represent the hopes, recommendations, and spirit for the future which a majority vote of Bethel citizens affirmed.

Nobody presumes that anyone's claim to vision or wisdom can be preempted by another, but neither can a public official declare him or herself beyond the legitimate scrutiny of the community. Neither election nor being born here changes that. And that is not just ginsaying criticism; it is loyal opposition, involvement.

The point of it all is no more or less than to resist the notion that we are powerless in the face of unchecked, predatory development. Change will happen and can be welcomed. But for one leaders to suggest that we are powerless to understand and direct that change, that our future is beyond our control, is to capitulate in advance, to surrender the notion of leadership altogether. I don't think that's what leaders do. I don't think that's how government works.

THE VISION THING

To the Editor:

On Tuesday evening, June 23, an informational meeting was held in the selectmen's office regarding the revitalization projects second phase occurring this summer in the lower Main Street and Railroad Street area. I observed and listened to both town officials and residents express a variety of perspectives and opinions. I appreciate and value what lies behind the thoughts and ideas of all the people who attended the meeting; the hard work, the skilled and informed opinions, the sentiment and the sentimental, the curious questioners, and the frustrations.

What concerned me most before the meeting; what concerned me more after meeting; and what continues two days later to alarm me is that decisions have been made for Bethel, about Bethel, in the name of Bethel, without asking Bethel until it's too late ... or is it?

Is it too late to offer opinions that will be heard and listened to and considered? The real issue, I believe, is about our vision of and for Bethel in the future.

Change is always risky, but can be very good; expansion is necessary, our revitalization part of reality. Just how we accomplish our goals, keeping in mind who we are and how we're going to get where we're going, is the vision part.

Bethel is a lovely New England village, with ambience and charm. It is lucky enough to have lovely old buildings, trees, greens and history. Let's improve the sewers because we must; fix up the streets and sidewalks so that they are safe, attractive and easier to plow. But let's consider commercial expansion in the appropriate area in town—routes 2 or 26—for the Conway we're told we'll be someday.

I would ask our selectmen that they consider the opinions offered last Tuesday and see if there might be compromises to be made in the spirit of both common sense and preservation of what is very special about our town—it's character. There are always ways to integrate our needs with our visions.

It is obvious to me that the officials we've elected to represent us are hardworking and expend lots of energy in their jobs. I have written them a letter expressing these thoughts and asking them to rethink their plans in light of the past week's events.

PLENTY OF PARKING

To the Editor:

Some afterthoughts about the informational meeting at the Town Office on Tuesday night, June 23, in regard to the plans for lower Main Street.

I think it was unfortunate that we residents on lower Main Street were not included in the plans until the contract with the construction company had been signed. We were the ones most directly effected and were not asked for any input into the plans. The need for more parking here is being overblown—there's sufficient parking, if it is used—a sign at Clark Street denoting "Sudbury Parking in the Rear" would help tremendously.

The town could help by enforcing the parking ordinances that are already in place. As to parking on both sides of the street—it would only compound the problems for residents.

As to the projected growth of commercial business on lower Main Street there is only one property currently for sale, and with property values so high, who can say what will happen ... and when.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be on Thursday, July 2, and feature the annual Society picnic, which this year will be held on Marramissic in South Bridgton. Those wishing to attend the picnic, which will also include a museum tour, should gather at the Dr. Moses Mason House at 5 p.m. in order to car pool and to form a motorcade so no one will get lost. Everyone attending is urged to bring a picnic lunch; as usual the Society will provide a beverage.

The Dr. Moses Mason House will open for its 19th summer season on July 1 and continue until Labor Day. Hours will be 1-4 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday; it will be closed on Mondays during July and August. Volunteer guides are always needed; anyone wishing to volunteer should call the Society office at 824-2908 or the head guide Judy Haskell at 824-2724. Training sessions are offered to those who wish to learn about the house and the life and times of Dr. Moses and Agnes Straw Mason.

Newest members of the Society are Beverly Onofrio of Central Falls, R.I. and Henry and Elizabeth Robertson of Bethel.

Over 40 attended the genealogical seminar held on Tuesday evening at the Dr. Moses Mason House, featuring a presentation by Ron Bremer of Salt Lake City, Utah, a genealogist who conducts seminars and workshops throughout the country. Mr. Bremer outlined the worst sources for genealogist to rely upon and also the best and most reliable.

SHRINKING STREETS?

To the Editor:

After reading about last Tuesday night's meeting on the lower Main Street revitalization project, in the Sun Journal, I was surprised to learn that Main Street has shrunk to 3 feet in width.

Main Street was laid out in 1822 as a narrow street, about wide enough for two horses to pass.

It stayed that way until 1869 and then was made 3 1/2 rods wide—5 1/2 feet or 5 1/2 yards to the road.

Now, all of a sudden it is only 3 feet wide—So what happened to the rest of the street? Is it possible the someone is one brick short of a full hod?

Trees are the making of any town so it is a shame to cut any of them to build a sidewalk that few people will ever use. As far as parking goes, Ames has a parking lot that will take care of every car in Bethel.

Who is going to park in back of the fire station and walk down to the post office and the IGA and lug the groceries all uphill.

They talk about the Main Street businesses. I guess most of the don't know what we had for business on Main Street 50 to 60 years ago.

Let's look at the Yates girls came from Andover. She was put in iron shackles and hauled off to jail. That was a disgrace and it gives SAD a bad image (if that is possible).

I hope the people remember the case when they are asked to vote the addition at CPS. The way that was handled, one would think that she was on the 10-most-wanted list.

I hope that the girl wins her case in court, and I am sure that she will.

What we need is a few good models like "Prof" Hanscom to manage the school system. You would see a difference then.

To the Editor:

Having enjoyed walking the streets of Bethel Village for more than a quarter of a century, I want to publicly comment on just one observation I have made.

Bethel has never looked better.

With new street, sidewalks, trees and flowers; with fresh paint, tasteful landscaping and appropriate signage, the town is beautiful. I should be proud of our village.

Thank you, Bethel.

We can't expect to keep the local aesthetic outlook we now have, if we have to cut all the trees and make a boulevard. This is one of the aspects that draw summer tourists, and all our local color in the fall will be gone forever and will make Bethel just another small New England town waiting for the outlet sales.

TAKE PARADISE AND PUT UP A PARKING LOT

here when I was just a child to visit my grandfather on the Northwest Bethel Road—where I now live. I have seen Bethel and the people in it going downhill in the last decade, and I think that if Bethel goes through with its plan to cut down the maple trees on lower Main Street to make more parking spaces it would be like a song that came out in the early 1970s says: "Take Paradise and put up a parking lot"—although we all know that no one would dare to suggest chopping down the trees on Paradise.

SHRINKING STREETS?

To the Editor:

After reading about last Tuesday night's meeting on the lower Main Street revitalization project, in the Sun Journal, I was surprised to learn that Main Street has shrunk to 34 feet in width.

Main Street was laid out in 1821 as a narrow street, about wide enough for two horses to pass.

It stayed that way until 1869 and then was made 3 1/2 rods wide—57 1/2 feet or 5 1/2 yards to the road.

Now, all of a sudden it is only 34 feet wide—So what happened to the rest of the street? Is it possible that someone is one brick short of a full "hod"?

Trees are the making of any town, so it is a shame to cut any of them to build a sidewalk that few people will ever use. As far as parking goes, Ames has a parking lot that will take care of every car in Bethel. Who is going to park in back of the fire station and walk down to the post office and the IGA and lug their groceries all uphill?

They talk about the Main Street businesses. I guess most of them don't know what we had for business on Main Street 50 to 60 years ago.

Let's look at the Yates girls case from Andover. She was put in irons, shackles and hauled off to jail. That was a disgrace and it gives SAD 44 a bad image (if that is possible).

I hope the people remember this case when they are asked to vote on the addition at CPS. The way this was handled, one would think that she was on the 10-most-wanted list.

I hope that the girl wins her case in court, and I am sure that she will.

What we need is a few good men like "Prof" Hanscom to manage the school system. You would see a big difference then.

NEVER LOOKED BETTER

To the Editor:

Having enjoyed walking the streets of Bethel Village for more than a quarter of a century, I want to publicly comment on just one observation I have made.

Bethel has never looked better.

With new street, sidewalks, trees and flowers; with fresh paint, tasteful landscaping and appropriate signage, the town is beautiful. We should be proud of our village.

Thank you, Bethel.

BETHEL CHIEF'S REPLY

To the Editor:

It has been brought to my attention that there is a lot of confusion and questions concerning the way the Bethel Police Department handled the incident at Telstar High School which eventually, and unfortunately, led to the arrest of a juvenile girl.

As with any story, there are two sides, for which I would like to take this moment to explain that of the Bethel Police Department.

I was contacted by the Assistant Principal of Telstar High School in reference to a juvenile that had been suspended from school for three days. The juvenile had returned to school and was held there on the first day of her suspension. The school advised me that there would probably be a problem the following day should the juvenile return, as they did not want her there.

I advised them if there was a problem to call us, as the juvenile had no right to be there due to the suspension.

On the following day I was contacted by the assistant principal and was advised that the juvenile had returned.

I advised the assistant principal that I would go to the school right away.

When I arrived at the school I spoke to the assistant principal. He stated he wanted the juvenile removed from the school.

I advised him that I would like to contact the parents and advise them to come to the school and pick up their daughter or she would be arrested for criminal trespass.

I contacted the mother of the juvenile, who on my first phone call refused to come and get the juvenile.

I advised the mother of what would take place if she refused to come to the school and pick up the juvenile.

The mother then stated that she would contact her husband and call me back.

The mother called me back stating that she had no way to get to the school to pick up the juvenile.

I asked if she had a friend or relative that could come and get the juvenile and she replied she had no friends or relatives in the area.

I advised the mother that this was something that this young juvenile should not have to go through. She was then advised that the juvenile would be arrested for criminal trespass, and she showed no concern that this would take place.

After talking to the mother, I then contacted the juvenile intake worker and informed them of the problem I was having at Telstar High School. Mr. Carter, the juvenile intake worker was contacted and I explained that the juvenile has been suspended from school for three days and that the mother has refused to come and pick the juvenile up.

Mr. Carter requested I give him the mother's phone number so he could talk to her and see what he could do.

A few minutes later Mr. Carter called me back at the High School and stated that the mother stated the same thing to him and that I was left with no choice but to arrest.

In reference to the articles that have appeared in the Lewiston Sun Journal on June 23, 1992 and the Bethel Citizen on June 24, 1992, to set the record straight for all the concerned citizens, I shall state the following:

1. The juvenile was not handcuffed and led from the school in front of all her friends. She was led to the cruiser without handcuffs where the rear door of the cruiser was held open. While standing next to the seat, she was then blocked by myself and Mr. Higgins' bodies, as well as the door of the cruiser, which at this time the handcuffs were placed on her. The cruiser was parked in the front of the school in view of the office windows only.

2. The policy which appears in the Bethel Police Department's Policies and Procedures Manual states that any person that is placed under arrest shall be handcuffed and placed in the rear seat of the cruiser before being transported to the Oxford County Jail. (The reason for this particular policy is (a) protection for the officer, and (b) to protect the subject arrested so that they may not exit the vehicle while the vehicle is in motion.)

3. The parents of this juvenile were advised that if they or someone else did not pick her up, then she would have to be arrested. They were given several chances before the arrest action took place.

4. As far as Mr. Craig stating that he thought I was transporting the juvenile home, Mr. Craig was never contacted by myself; and I do not believe that Mr. Higgins had contacted him either. I do not believe that Mr. Craig was aware of the incident when it took place.

Another policy in the Bethel Police Department Policies and Procedures Manual states that the cruiser shall not cross the town line of Bethel except in "emergency situations." Had this juvenile lived in Bethel, then the juvenile could have been taken home by the Bethel Police Department and placed in the custody of the mother.

In closing, I would like to add that the juvenile's mother is showing much concern after the fact by stating that she made several calls to the jail and told her daughter that if she was scared she would find some way to come and get her. When in fact, the whole situation of her daughter being put through this ordeal could have been avoided had she in fact found some way to come and get her daughter at the school.

REPORTING INACCURATE

To the Editor:

As principal of Telstar Regional High School, I feel compelled to respond to three articles that appeared in the "Bethel Citizen" on June 24.

The three articles had as many as 12 inaccuracies in them and when I called Ms. Chapman, the "Sun Journal Regional" staff writer, concerning the inaccuracies, and asked her why neither I nor my assistant principal had been called, she said that she had talked with the superintendent and did not think of it. I call this irresponsible journalism.

I would like to set the record straight concerning the removal and handcuffing of Miss Yates on that Wednesday morning. First of all, when Augusta came to school on Tuesday, the second day of her suspension, both Mr. Higgins and Mr. Craig tried to get her parents to come and get her but they refused to do so. Therefore, before the buses left at the end of the day, Mr. Craig called and talked with Mrs. Yates and told her that if she sent her daughter to school on Wednesday we would have no choice but to have the authorities come and remove her from school.

On Wednesday morning when Miss Yates arrived at school I called her parents and gave them a chance to come and pick their daughter up before I called the authorities, they refused. Once Chief Bellman arrived at school, he called Mrs. Yates and explained to her what he would have to do regarding her daughter and wouldn't she please come and pick her up. Again she refused. Chief Bellman then called Mr. Lee Carter, the Juvenile Intake Worker. Mr. Carter called the Yates and tried to reason with them, but he too was unsuccessful in convincing them to come and pick their daughter up. By this time it was 9:40 a.m. and the decision was made to transport Miss Yates to South Paris.

Chief Bellman and I escorted Miss Yates out to the police cruiser, and again he explained to Augusta that before he could transport anybody he had to put handcuffs on them, and it was at this point that the handcuffs were put on Miss Yates. As all students were in class at this time, and where the cruiser was parked, it was virtually impossible for any student to view this. Therefore, Augusta was not handcuffed "in front of her friends" as one of the articles stated.

I also find it strange that the total policy for the procedure for disciplining students on the bus was not printed.

I did find it interesting that the "Sun-Journal" did try to pacify me by printing a correction to one of the inaccuracies in a two by two inch correction box on page 12 of the regional section on June 25.

I would hope that these articles are an exception and not the norm as to the quality of reporting that we read in the "Bethel Citizen."

D- FOR RESEARCH

To the Editor:

On the front page of the June 24 edition of "The Citizen" appeared three articles concerning SAD #44. If I was just a weekly reader of the paper, I may have been upset at the process reportedly used by SAD #44. But, being an active participant in the proceedings I know both sides of each case. My real disappointment with the newspaper articles was the lack of accuracy in reporting.

In the case of Ryan Stowell, he did admit to throwing an orange with such force that the student the orange struck was injured enough to warrant being transported to Stephens Memorial Hospital and remains under doctors care. Ryan's mother, Mrs. Crockett, expressed displeasure with the school when it did not request positive comments from teachers concerning Ryan as well as teacher comments concerning Ryan's involvement in the orange throwing matter. This information, along with the academic and behavioral progress reports, was used by the administration in preparing their case for presentation to the school board.

It is important for all to be aware that when a disciplinary matter appears before the school board it is on an appeal basis or for a possible long term suspension (a suspension which is longer than 10 consecutive school days). The procedure to be followed when meeting with the school board is well defined. During the hearing, the school board sets as judge and jury, the parents and student are the defense, and the administration acts as the prosecution. There is a set outline that is followed during the board hearing. This outlined procedure is defined to protect the rights of the student. The student and parents are given the outlined procedure in advance of the meeting and allowed ample opportunity to prepare their case for the school board. If the parents wish, they may be represented by an attorney.

The paper downplayed what happened to the young lady injured. The paper also neglected to mention that the school board agreed to pay for two correspondence courses from the American School, with support from the Telstar Guidance Department, as well as paid for the use of the Bethel Area Health Center's exercise facility in order for Ryan to complete the necessary credits which would allow him to receive his diploma. At the time of this writing, the course work is incomplete.

In the case of Miss Yates, a similar lack of research (or reporting) was evident in the newspaper articles. This existed even after I shared follow-up information and other facts which would have been helpful if the reporter (newspaper) wished a balanced story. The information I shared included the policy pertaining to the case, given in total written form (several sections of the policy were not printed in the article).

If the newspaper was interested in a factual, balanced story they might have wished to ask the following questions: What is the definition of a fight? Was the incident a fight or an assault? During the investigation the other student, Miss Yates, and witnesses all agreed that the other student struck Miss Yates once in the face while attempting to keep Miss Yates from taking her book bag. The next question was how many times did Miss Yates strike the other student? The answer from investigation, was between five to seven times.

With the reference to the handcuffing incident: The initial incident took place on the bus in February, Miss Yates appealed the suspension, the school board attempted to hear the appeal twice but allowed postponements on the Yates' request. The school board finally heard the appeal and upheld the suspension on April 13.

After that board meeting concluded, I verbally notified Mrs. Yates that the suspension would resume the next day, April 24. It is important to note that the suspension was for three days, with the first being served at the superintendent's office as an in-house suspension. On April 24, Miss Yates rode the bus to school in violation of the suspension. She was detained in the assistant principal's office, while both Miss Yates, in person, and her mother, by telephone, that if Miss Yates came to school the next day, April 15, the third day of the suspension, that the school would call the police and have her removed from school on grounds of criminal trespassing.

On April 15, Miss Yates did appear at school after repeatedly being told that she was in violation of suspension. Mrs. Yates was contacted by the high school principal via the telephone after conversations with Miss Yates and again requested to have her daughter leave the school grounds. After concluding conversations were held with both Miss Yates and her mother, the Bethel police were summoned to remove Miss Yates from school grounds. Both Miss Yates and her mother, via the telephone, were notified that Chief Bellman, of the Bethel Police Department, would be removing her from the school grounds and transporting her to the Oxford County Sheriff's Department and that the transportation would be in handcuffs as part of the standard police procedure. Between 8:15 a.m. and 9:45 a.m. on April 15 the superintendent, Chief Bellman, and Probation and Parole Officer Carter all attempted to have Miss Yates picked up at school and not force the issue of Chief Bellman removing her from the school grounds.

The newspaper went for sensationalism, without first doing their homework. The school followed established procedures as defined by the school board. Both matters appeared before the school board and final decisions were made. Both of these cases occurred in February. Why did the newspapers decide to run the stories in June? Why did the newspaper only choose to present one side of the story?

Dewaine Craig
Superintendent
SAD #44

(Two corrections are in order in regard to last week's reporting on the Augusta Yates' incident.

Yates was not led from the high school building in handcuffs, but was handcuffed at the police cruiser, where she was screened by Chief Bellman and Assistant Principal Higgins from the possible view of her classmates.

And she did not receive her letter in track, nor compete in regional track meets, because she was removed from the team for failure to meet academic requirements.

Further, while it is implicit toward the end of one article that efforts were made to avoid a situation in which the police would be forced to take her away, that fact, and the amount of time and effort that was put into those attempts, should have been more clearly stated higher in the article.

Finally, in response to Superintendent Craig's question as to why the two incidents were not reported until last week: It is not The Citizen's policy to routinely report on student discipline matters. We believe that in almost all cases such matters are best left to the administration and school board to deal with—without second guessing from the local newspaper.

Last week, however, was a different matter. On Monday a civil lawsuit was filed against the school district; and, in a strikingly similar case, the mother of another disciplined student said she was also contemplating legal action against the district. And on Tuesday, a lawyer for the second student's family announced that he would attempt, in open session, to force changes in the district's discipline policies.

Unlike most other student discipline matters, last week's events were news, and it is our responsibility to report them to the best of our ability. As always, we regret any inaccuracies that find their way into print.

LET US BUILD CPS

To the Editor:

Over the past few months I have read the Bethel paper each week and seen my tax bill on the state and the federal levels increase. I'm not complaining about this, but I do wonder if others (in Bethel) make the connection between state and federal funding (grants, etc.) and increased taxes.

Bethel is expecting funds for sewer work for schools, for closing landfill and possibly a grant for Gamm II building from two businesses (state and federal governments) that are operating at a loss. By that I mean they are not taking enough in each year to cover what they spend.

Bethel is like many other towns are forced to take this money to cover high costs for projects demanded by law, but the problem of economics worsens. We cannot expect our state or our nation to get out of debt as long as they fund projects without the income to do so.

In regards to the badly needed CPS addition, I personally have never bought anything without knowing the cost of it in advance. Perhaps it's silly and old fashioned, but if I couldn't be told how much the district would have to pay after the first year increase in taxes of 12 to 14 dollars then I wouldn't vote for the project until I could be told.

As for the state paying half the bill—what a partner to trust. The state is in the red, they are looking for ways to cut the budget. A group of towns in Maine is suing the state to change the school funding formula, companies are closing and unemployment is high; therefore, tax revenues are decreasing.

Would a banker accept a promise to pay from a company with this kind of record?

Think about walking into the bank and telling a loan officer you are spending more than you make each year you don't really see a way to cut your expenses, you don't see a way to increase your income, but if they will build a house, you'll co-sign and pay half the bill.

(the government) with the same poor credit history gets trusted and taxes go up and deficits go up and people have less to spend so more businesses in an area depending on them close.

Economically it is a bad move to add on to CPS at this time, but knowing Bethel as I do I'm sure you'll vote it in—so let me ask one question.

Why must it cost $8 million? Bethel and the surrounding areas are construction oriented. Why don't all you contractors and supply stores get together and help yourselves. Why not bid on this project as a group. If you all cut a small amount from your profit, you could bring in the lowest bid, especially when you consider that out-of-state contractors usually have to pay per diem too.

Everyone in the area could work if laborers were hired locally as well as tradesmen and even with a slight cut in price the supply stores would profit with sales they may not get with an outsider doing the work and everyone would be helping the community.

I know it's a far-fetched idea, but it seems to me that the SAD #44 towns have all the materials and expertise and manpower to do this project if they merely joined forces. It would be a shame to have an outsider do it just because they are big and have done large jobs.

Getting it done locally could reduce the overall cost and save everyone money as well—and everyone works close to home for a while. It's probably just a crazy thought, but no crazier than borrowing money without knowing how much you have to pay back!

outrageous to trade large trees for 10 parking spots for possible future businesses.

Jodrey, however, predicted that not only trees would be falling to progress—private residences on that stretch of road were also rapidly becoming a thing of the past, he said. "There won't be any (private homes) there in 10 years. Private residences on Main Street are going, and they're all going to be gone as soon as the families change over. Let's face it."

But Dick Taylor vehemently disagreed. "The notion that all these residences will be replaced with businesses ought to be looked on with horror," he said. "That would be the absolute worst thing that could happen to this town. I think it's contrary to the best interest of this town."

June Greig added, "We don't want to look like North Conway."

And Ellen Crocker made her own prediction. "If you cut (the trees) down, you'll kill the goose that laid the golden egg," she said. "We're not going to have a Bethel the way we love Bethel. You'll take away all its charm and beauty."

But Selectman Norm Putnam countered that lower Main Street was inevitably changing. Four businesses have opened in the neighborhood in the last 10 years, he pointed out.

"There are eight businesses there now," Putnam said. "Ten years from now there'll probably be 12 or more. Do you want to come back to a Town Meeting ten years from now and spend $100,000 to fix lower Main Street? We should take advantage of this grant money and do the job right and do it now. We plan to replace the trees one to one. It's not our purpose to cut trees. It's our purpose to plan for the future."

Backstage owner Harry Faulkner agreed with Putnam. "I don't think they're going to destroy Main Street and make it look like Main Street in Boston, Faulkner said. "I think they deserve some credit on this particular point. Obviously, with all of you here (to complain), they've stuck their necks out. The turtle doesn't get anywhere until he sticks his neck out. Main Street will become more and more commercial. I know it's hard to swallow, but it's probably better for Main Street to do this."

Henley said the town would try to minimize damage to the trees during construction, and she said later that perhaps as few as two or three trees would have to come down.

"Every tree that comes down is an extra expense to the project," she said. "We'll be working as hard as we can to avoid taking any more down than absolutely necessary."

Please, more signs this time

The audience also complained Tuesday that when work was done on upper Main Street last year, construction crews didn't use enough signs.

Sue Burnham, of Mother's Restaurant, said last summer's construction signs were poorly thought out, and upper Main Street businesses lost customers because there were few, if any, detour signs to redirect traffic. "Sometimes there was just a sign saying 'road closed,'" Burnham said.

Couture Construction President Sonny Couture assured the residents he would use whatever signs were appropriate.

"Lower Main Street may have to be closed at certain times because of the amount of work we have to do," Couture said, "but we'll try to put up detour signs and notify you when the street will be closed."

Couture said Main Street should always be open to traffic by the end of the day. Preliminary plans call for detouring traffic up Mechanic Street, he said.

Optometrist Lenny Shaw asked if a schedule could be posted of when and where construction work would be going on.

Couture agreed to try and post when roads would be closed or worked on.

Couture said his crews will begin replacing pipes within the next two weeks on Route 26 near the sewer treatment plant.

Lower Main Street will not be torn up until after Mollykett Day, Couture said.

School board

Budget repercussions

Brown was not only upset with image problems created by the handling of Yates and Stowell's cases, he also took aim at the board's reaction to the May annual budget hearing.

"It is obvious we had angry people there," Brown said. "People have the right to be angry. Accept the anger. I have heard board members say that the only message they received from the meeting was that the budget passed. Let's rise above that level of thinking. Let's accept that people are afraid. People are afraid of not being able to pay their bills. Let's try to help them. Let's not tell them that we didn't hear them."

Brown also took exception to the way the board responds to public input.

"The board and the administration as a whole certainly gives the impression that public input is more of a nuisance than a necessary ingredient in the whole mix," he said.

"I have never sensed that we are particularly friendly towards visitors—especially those who come with an axe to grind. Visitors have told me that they leave feeling like fools."

"I also hear and visually witness a negative attitude within the board and from the administration and teachers," Brown continued. "I recently attended a public meeting where a district employee repeated 8 to 10 times during a fifteen minute presentation that the district has no money and was given no money. I wonder, what is six million dollars—pocket change?"

Brown urged all district employees to accentuate the positive programs, people and events in SAD #44 and work on improving the district's image.

Little discussion was held in response to Brown's remarks. Bethel director John Brown said, "We've had bad images in the past and we have survived them. I'm sure we'll survive this one."

From the Bethel Police log:

Police charge two men with domestic assault

By WENDY HANSCOM

Bethel police charged two men with domestic assault over the weekend.

Saturday morning, police met with a Bethel woman who told police she had been assaulted. Officer Jim Merrill took her statement, and Christopher Rose of Bethel was later arrested for domestic assault and transported to the Oxford County Jail.

Early Sunday morning, a Bethel Park Apartments resident told police that her estranged boyfriend had threatened her and tried to break into her apartment through the livingroom window.

Bethel police put out a be-on-the-lookout alert to area police for Vernon Brown of Norway. Brown was arrested by Paris police. Bethel police charged him with criminal trespass, criminal threatening, disorderly conduct and attempted burglary.

In other police news, on Friday evening, Officer Darren Tripp spoke to Dan Donnelly, who reported that while riding his bicycle on Vernon Street two subjects in a passing truck screamed at him.

Donnelly told police he approached the driver of the truck, Ryan Stowell, and his juvenile passenger later on Main Street. Donnelly told police that the juvenile had repeatedly opened and closed a "switchblade type" knife in a "threatening manner."

Tripp interviewed Stowell and the juvenile. He took a knife found on one of the subjects to Donnelly, who said it was not the knife he had seen. Police charged Stowell with disorderly conduct. The juvenile was charged with criminal threatening with a weapon.

On Saturday at 7:05 a.m. Officer Merrill returned from patrol to find someone had placed what appeared to be human feces in the police station doorway.

Stolen, stinky and steer-attacking dogs also kept police busy during the last week or so.

On June 20, Rick Merrill of Bethel reported that before going on vacation he left his golden retriever puppy with a friend, who then gave the pup away. Merrill said he contacted the people who had the puppy, but they refused to return it. Merrill told police he would try to get the dog back before filing charges.

On June 21, Bob Saunders of Main Street reported hearing a loud disturbance in the apartment below him. Officer Merrill met with Jeff Merrill, who said he had yelled at his dog for messing on the floor and then threw the dog out the door. Officer Merrill reported that no apparent harm had been done to the dog. He warned the dog owner that it is possible to be charged with animal abuse.

Also on June 21, Jack Orino of Bethel turned a skunk-sprayed dog over to police. Orino said he found the dog wandering around Main Street. Police looked up the dog's license and then took it to its Paradise Road home and hooked it to its leash. The dog's owner, William Caddigan, was not home when police arrived with the dog.

Officer Anne Bertram responded to another dog complaint on Monday, June 22. Wendy Annis of the East Bethel Road reported that two of Nanci Chappi's dogs had attacked her steer. Annis said she found bite marks on the steer's legs. Annis told police she had called Chappi, who agreed to pay any veterinarian bills.

In other police news, on Friday June 19, police arrested and charged Richard Breaux of Bethel with assault, disorderly conduct and burglary in connection with incidents at the Backstage Restaurant and Bethel Park Apartments.

Dennis Smith reported on June 22 the theft of his canoe, a life jacket and set of paddles. Smith valued his loss at $350.

On Thursday, Officer Tripp responded to a report of gun shots near the Crescent Park School. When Tripp arrived at the school, he reported seeing two juveniles fleeing from the playground area.

Tripp pursued the youths and apprehended one about 300 feet into the woods. Tripp described in his report finding "blotter acid" (LSD) on the boy. Police sent the suspected narcotic to a lab for chemical analysis. The youth was turned over to his father. The juvenile also gave police the name of his companion.

Correction:

Last week's police news contained an error.

Officer Darren Tripp responded on June 18 to the Bethel Park apartment of Gary Goodrich, not Brian Goodrich.

Volunteers are needed for the library's summer reading program. Carol Littlehale is asking individuals interested in organizing the children's program to call her at 392-4841. The library will hold an open house on Aug. 1. Doll houses will be on display, the community cookbook will be available to buy and a book sale will be held. Anyone with books to donate may drop them off at the library.

Buttons, T-shirts and hats are now on sale from the Olde Home Days committee. This year's logo design is a '56 Chevy. The buttons, also available from local stores, are numbered and give you the chance to win many nice door prizes donated by local businesses. Prizes received to date include Fischer x-c skis from Akers Ski, Inc., two day passes to Sunday River Skiway, two day passes to Sunday River Mountain Bike Park, a wooden ornament made by Joyce Frazier and mowing or rototilling, compliments of Emerson Excavation. The Olde Home Days theme this year is the "Nifty Fifties." Local couples married 50 or more years will be honored. If you have been married for 50 years or know a couple who has been, call Trudy Akers at 392-3157. The group is looking for volunteers to help on Saturday, Aug. 1. A chairman is needed for the horse-shoe pitch, also people to sell shirts, hats and buttons for an hour or two. Please call members Trudy Akers, Phyllis Spaulding or Leon Simmons for information on any Olde Home Days event.

Chris and Cindy McElmurry of New Britain, Conn., are announcing the birth of a daughter, Jasmine, on June 10. Jasmine joins two brothers, Dustin and Ernie. Her maternal grandmother is Dianne Cutting, her great-grandmother is Doris Pear Roberts, and great-great grandmother Alice Pearce lives in South Rumford.

Rhonda Jodrey recently visited former resident, Ann Summerton Reinhart and family in Durango, Col. Ann and husband, Craig, have three children, James, seven, Daniel, five, and Elizabeth who is three.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Johnny Kahkonen from Norway has been visiting Frances and Bob Grant for a few days.

Have you noticed the bright new flag at the Stoneham Rescue Build-ing? This was donated to them by the Stoneham Republican Com-mittee. This flag was received from Senator Cohen and it was flown over the United States Capitol.

Laurence and Mildred Dadmun are at home after being away to South Carolina for two weeks. They had a good time but said it's always good to get home.

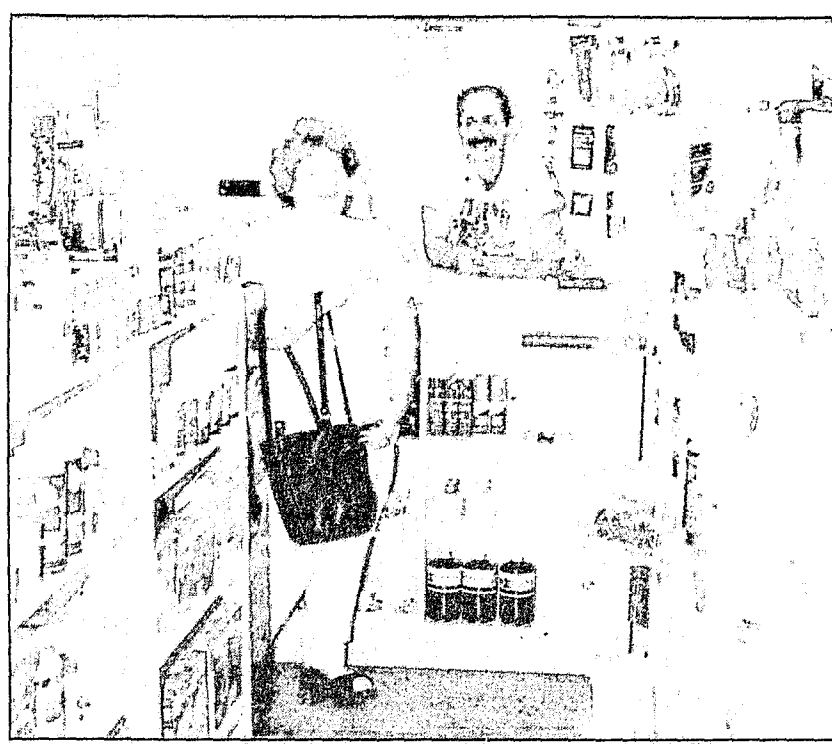

On Saturday I attended the wed-ding of Pamela May and Robert Berube at South Paris. It was a very pretty and unique wedding with special music and a poem, to fit the occasion. The reception was held in Lewiston.

On Sunday I attended a baby shower for Cheryl Whitman at the Oxford Church of Christ in South Paris given by Tami Whitman and Ruth Twichell. Unfortunately Cheryl was in the hospital at that time but was feeling better. She got a lot of nice gifts and a video of the party was taken for her to see later on.

Well, there has been a bear and a moose by our house and this morn-ing I saw the prettiest little deer which had come down out of the woods and was standing there in the tall grass and bushes. He was so pretty and graceful when he bounded back into the woods.

He was wise not to cross the road with all the work traffic going by. As you all know I am a lover of all animals. One time someone called on the phone and said do you live on the main road and when I said yes, he said you had better get off be-cause there's a car coming!

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor from Nashua, N.H. have been staying

GILEAD STORE OPEN-The Gilead Schoolhouse Country Store opened for business last week. The school has been remodeled to accommodate rows of groceries and coolers for beer, wine and soda. Here store owner Dave Alessi chats with customer Edna Dupont of Gilead. Alessi said business was slow but steady during his first week. He said he is planning to add more local crafts to his inventory. He is also waiting for a pickle barrel and wheel of cheese to arrive. The store is open seven days a week from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

Sheila Douglass celebrated her 16th birthday at her home in Bethel. Nelson and Elsie Douglass were among the guests.

Jerry Geiling is building a camp on East B Hill for Bob Barlow, who lost his former camp by fire. Mr. Barlow's former partner and co-owner of land is Franklyn Withers, who has resided several years in Hanover. Mr. Withers has a large garden, greenhouse and shop but due to illness is now directing the business from his easy chair with his bare feet propped up on a stool in-stead of wriggling in the dirt. When we called recently we found him just as full of fun and sass as ever.

Harry Morton of West Bethel is coming to Upton Union Church Sat-urday evenings at 6 o'clock to con-duct a series of Bible classes. He will be teaching from the book of John. Each may bring a Bible and notebook, but there will be Bibles available if one does not have one. Everyone is invited regardless of what church they are affiliated with

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dock accompanied their daughter, Gretchen Dock of Newton, Mass., to Glastonbury, Conn. on Friday, June 19 to attend the commencement exercises of the Class of 1992 at the Glastonbury High School.

Their grandson, James N. Dock, son of Roger and Susanne Dock of Glastonbury was one of 324 members of the graduating class. He plans to study Social Sciences and History at the University of Maine, Farmington, this fall.

Mrs. Anthony L. Pugliese recently attended two college graduations. On May 9, her daughter-in-law, Jill M. Pugliese of Auburn received her Bachelor of Science degree in business administration with high distinction from the University of Maine in Augusta. May 16, Mrs. Pugliese traveled to Waltham, Mass., to see her granddaughter, Susan B. Chamberlain, receive her Bachelor of Science degree in marketing from Bentley College.

Clyde Dailey and Lucille Rybeck of Canton called on Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dillingham Tuesday evening.

Betty Johnson of Norway and Mrs. Gordon Dillingham were in Lewiston Tuesday afternoon on business.

Craig Moore Dillingham was guest of honor at a surprise party that was given by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dillingham.

An outdoor barbecue was enjoyed by the 26 guests that were in attendance for the occasion. Guests were from Norway, Paris, Oxford, Otisfield, North Norway, North Paris and South Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dillingham called on their children, Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Dillingham and family of Portland, Sunday evening.

The July meeting of the Historical Society will feature slides of Woodstock. July 18 a film on events last year will be shown at the museum in the afternoon.

Larry Billings has given the society some dinner plates and three trays.

Olive Davis spent a few days in Stephens Memorial Hospital this week. Esther Davis took her down and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews of Bridgton brought her home Friday and stayed with her awhile.

Esther Davis went with a group of friends to Lewiston to see a special movie this week. She took Vera Buck to Norway this week and now she is helping on a sale for the church. She is a busy woman.

At the Historical Society's June meeting, Francis Brooks gave some egg scales, Annie Crockett gave an item from a World War II air watcher, Lillian Leach of Portland gave a fan, and Kay McAllister gave a picture frame. Mary Billings and Sandra Brooks provided refreshments. Larry Billings talked on how history is described by writers of great literature.

Donna Burnard of Andover visited Charles Smith on Fathers Day, June 21.

Emma Ordway of Sebago visited Charles and Polly Smith on June 20 and 21.

Deborah and Bill Eldredge of Unity visited Millie and Dana Jackson on June 20.

Peggy Coolidge, Ruth Bethel and Opal Tyler went to the Senior Citizens meeting on June 10 in Oxford. The meeting was at the restaurant across from the shopping mall.

Phyllis Barnhill and her daughter, Brenda arrived from Sarasota, Fla. on June 26. They will be spending two weeks in town.

"Babe" Bartlett and a friend spent the day in Boothbay Harbor on June 24.

Alder River Grange hosted Oxford Pomona on June 23. The food was good and a good crowd turned out for Pomona.

Myra Foster went to see Phantom

FIELD DRESSING—Members of Battery A, 3rd Battalion, 197th Field Artillery of the New Hampshire Army National Guard have begun a summer encampment at the Bog Brook facility as Civil Air Patrol cadets last week worked on their infantry skills. Following smoke bomb and blank ammo demonstrations, the guardsmen demonstrated the use of camouflage paint to the cadets. Here, Cadet Justin Jipson of Greene paints the face of Sonia Barrantes of Scarborough with camouflage paint sticks.

Amy and Roger Hanscom. Hazel was there and we had a delightful reunion and talks of old times.

Five members of the Windy Valleys Snowmobile Club went to Log Haven Restaurant for dinner Saturday, June 20. They were Sylvia and Bill Wight, Herb and Ruth Kittredge and Gil Seeley. Sylvia's sister Shirley Young and her friend joined them. There will be no meetings during July and August.

Members of the "Newry bowling gang" who went to the Oxford Lanes were Karlene Bacheider, Gil Seeley, Louise Tetley, Sylvia Wight, Olive Anderson and Irene Hadfield. Rona Powers was a guest. Of the "lefties" Gil was high on the triples beating Karlene by two pins. Karlene was high on the singles, Karlene had one strike, Gil had three spares, Louise had three spares, and Olive had two spares. All went to lunch and did some shopping. By the way in last week's column it was printed that Rona Powers and Jim Anderson had a good time. I never said that...I said that they were guests. Sorry about that.

Karlene Bacheider took her mother, Julia Goodwin to Auburn last week so Julia could spend some time with her friend, Hazel Woodbury. While there, we went to Monmouth to visit Karlene's childhood friend, Glennis Gardner, and her husband, who hadn't seen each other for about 20 years. I went along for the ride and to meet them. We had a nice visit and lunch. They hope it won't be that long next time.

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

With the annual convention of the Department of Maine, American Legion and Auxiliary now behind them, members of Jackson-Silver Unit met on June 25 to have a report, take care of business needing attention and to do some planning for summer activities.

Clara Wilson's application for membership was accepted, making her the newest member. A grocery gift certificate was voted for a member recovering from an illness which required a hospital stay.

The delegates enjoyed their trip to Ellsworth for the convention. Fannie Cummings, Kathleen McAllister, Vera Cross and Olive Risko, the voting delegates, went on Thursday afternoon, June 18, and Noreen Russo joined them on Friday evening at the banquet, taking part in the second District's skit along with Fannie and Olive. Throughout the convention Fannie Cummings was honored by both the Auxiliary and Legion. On Friday, at the opening of the session she was in a procession of Past Department (state) Presidents in attendance, was escorted to the platform and introduced as the woman who was elected to the department presidency 50 years ago. She was presented with a corsage and gift. Flowers were given twice more before adjournment on Saturday afternoon. On Saturday she was summoned to the Department American Legion session where the Department Commander, Richard Blouin, read a tribute to her 71 years as an American Legion Auxiliary member and to her golden anniversary as department president, giving her a beautiful, large engraved plaque from the State American Legion organization. While still on the stage, State Representative, Phyllis Erwin, presented her with a lovely certificate from the State Legislature.

There are 141 American Legion Auxiliary Units in Maine; 355 members were registered at the convention. Jackson-Silver Unit won more awards than any other, though a membership citation escaped them. On Friday a first place award was received for their annual report of their Americanism program, followed later in the day by three more first place plaques; one was for their scrapbook and report on Czechoslovakia, another for their overall report of the Foreign Relations program. The fourth award was for first place for their pressbook, their second year in a row to win this award. On Saturday they received a number of certificates for participation in the following programs or activities: Special Olympics, Veterans Affairs, Tugus Christmas Gift Shop, Community Service, and Education. The delegates were happy to learn that Troy Wing of Bryant Pond was the winner of a department scholarship.

Activities planned for the summer include a community fair day on July 25. There will be a flea market inside the Legion Hall so that it will be held rain or shine. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Individuals or organizations wishing to rent a table for $5 to sell their own items may call Leah Deegan at 824-2477 or Noreen Russo at 665-2166. Lunch items will be on sale at noon. In the evening, starting at 5:30 a public supper will be served for a donation of $4 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12. Beans and ham will be featured, but there will be something for dessert. Part of the proceeds will go to the expansion fund of Whittam Memorial Library.

The annual family picnic of Jackson-Silver Post and Unit will be on Aug. 20 at the Post Home. It is hoped that all past commanders and past presidents will attend as well as present members and their families. After the cookout there will be a flag burning ceremony. Post members have been busy making a garden and picnic area on one side of the Legion Hall where the picnic will be held.

STONEHAM RESCUE SUPPER

Stoneham Rescue Service will hold its annual spaghetti supper on Friday, July 3 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Rescue Barn at the corner of Route 5 and the Butter's Hill Road in East Stoneham.

The cost is $4 for adults, $3 for children under 12 and free for children under 5. Seconds are on the house. Take out will also be available.

Proceeds from this and other Stoneham Rescue events help fund the services ongoing provision of emergency medical care for the Albany, Lovell, Stoneham, and Waterford area plus aid in the cost of purchasing equipment such as pagers.

Rotary Club notes

Marie Bartlett was the guest speaker at the Tuesday, June 23, Bethel Rotary Club meeting, speaking on Oxford County Recycling. She is their Marketing Director at present.

Her presentation was to review recyclables and their use in the system of reuse. She answered many questions from those attending which shows the interest in recycling.

The RYLA Conference will be held at Bridgton Academy on June 26-28. Dan Hart, along with Telstar sophomores Cheri Myers and Misty Hutchins will be attending representing Bethel Rotary Club.

The club still needs good items for the auction. Things are coming in slowly this year so anything you aren't using please consider donating for this worthy cause. This is Rotary's largest fundraiser, which goes to support many worthwhile community programs, so please keep us in mind and contact David Murphy for pick up. Jim Sysko presented Rotary information and shared a reading from the Rotarian magazine.

CHAMBER GOLF TOURNAMENT SET—The third annual Chamber Challenge Golf Tournament is scheduled for July 7 at the Bethel Inn and Country Club. Here, Bethel Inn golf pro Allen Connors and tournament chairman Jack Cronin show off the Chamber Cup that the winning team will take back to their local chamber of commerce office. Over $3,000 in prizes will be awarded. The tournament is open to all chamber members in Maine.

Guests for the morning included Trevor Quinn, Pat Quinn and Pat Dunbar, from Northern Ireland, here on a trip with both Catholic and Protestant youth; Bill Lowther and Gil Robinson, summer regulars; Carl Hansen, Mary Jo Reed, Colin Penley and Billy Murphy of Bethel; and Norma and Joe Reidy of Massachusetts.

to travel to Maine.

"After the second day of the hike the kids knew it wasn't going to be easy. They had work together. When we finished they had a real sense of satisfaction," Quinn said.

Under normal circumstances, it might seem unremarkable for a group of teenagers to work collectively to overcome an obstacle. Not so in the case of these teenaged students, Quinn said.

In a country bitterly divided along religious lines, seven of the 12 students attend the Protestant Dromore High School while the other five attend St. Paul's, a Catholic school.

"We're trying to establish cross-community contact with these kids. The outdoor education program is intended to break down the hidden barriers to understanding," Quinn explained. "It's irrelevant what beliefs and traditions you have if you have to get something done together."

Now in its fourth year, the group which receives a modest amount of financial support from the country's Department of Education, has already tackled trips to Scotland and the French Alps.

Dubbed "the Irish Rovers" by Selectmen Wight, the group will spend four days canoeing down the Moose River in Jackman next week before traveling to Boston to celebrate July Fourth along the banks of the Charles River.

"That's got us more nervous than anything else," quipped Quinn.

Seated Sunday in the dining hall at the Maine Conservation School, counselor Pat Dunbar expressed hope that the positive effects of this trip to the wilds of Maine will last forever.

"The kids are friends now. I hope when we get home they won't ignore each other. I hope instead they'll have a chat," Dunbar said.

The Maine Conservation School, situated on a 150-acre parcel of land beside Lake Christopher in Woodstock, is a non-profit institution providing environmental education for children and adults of all ages.

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

The strawberry festival at the Locke Mills church has been postponed from its original date and has been rescheduled for July 11.

Jon and Marcia Smith returned home to Houlton Thursday after spending several days visiting her parents Lorraine and John Mills here and other friends and relatives in Wilton and Livermore Falls. While they were here Marcia and I visited Thelma Merrill in Ledgeview and Elvira Littlehale at Market Square Health Facility.

Congratulations to Lee-Ann Coolidge and Richard Wright on their marriage Saturday, June 20. Helen Chase and Mr. and Mrs. George Gibbs have moved to their summer camps on South Pond.

Mary Mills, sister of John Mills, got some good news following her surgery Monday when the surgeon only found a cyst and not another cancer.

Charlotte Cole visited Bertha Flanders Tuesday, left her some goodies, planted some petunias for her and sang Happy Birthday to her in honor of her 82nd birthday on Thursday. Wednesday Buster and Shirley Morse, Kay McAllister, Phyllis Jordan and granddaughters, Adria and Nicole visited her and on her birthday Thelma Gaudet, Ella June Morse, Tura Martin and grandson and Patricia Moxcey came and took her to dinner at a Bethel restaurant. She said she got a lot of presents and oodles of cards. Happy Birthday, Bertha, from all of us.

The Gilbert Manufacturing plant is closed this week for vacation. Congratulations to Flossie Seames on winning the microwave oven at the new store.

Robert Hall is expected on July 2 from North Carolina for a week's visit.

Thursday John Mills visited his

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

The third annual Bethel Art Fair was a tremendous success. There were 45 artists from all over New England who displayed and sold their art. The community support of this event is wonderful, as 40 businesses and local citizens contributed as program sponsors. Ex-brother Donald who is recuperating from a heart attack at his home at North Norway.

Brian and Martha Hoff and nine-month-old Elizabeth from Pennsylvania are camping on North Pond and visiting her grandfather Herman Cole. Her sister and four children are also camping on North Pond and they all got together Wednesday for a "hootnanny." Among the others that were there were Laura Heikinen, her sister-in-law Helen Tucci, Charlotte Cole and Herman's son and wife Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cole also from Pennsylvania. After the hootnanny they all enjoyed lunch.

We started the week off right by going to a three-point grange meeting at Franklin Grange on Monday night, June 15.

On Friday, Viva's daughter Wynona called to let us know that Viva is back in Maine Medical for more chemo therapy.

Robert Lowe
Passed Away June 28, 1990
If it is only the grave that needs care. But the one we love is sleeping there. The call was sudden, the shock severe. Whoever thought such grief was near. The pain of parting, without good-bye, shall remain with us until we die. Some have forgotten now that he's gone, but we will love and remember him no matter how long. Sadly missed by Wife and Family

YOUR HOME IS A TAX SHELTER

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

Under current tax law, your home can be a tax shelter. If you itemize deductions, you get a deduction for property taxes and mortgage interest.

You can deduct all the interest on mortgages totaling as much as $1 million on your principal residence and second home. You must have made the loan to buy, build, or improve the home. In addition, you can deduct the interest on home-equity loans of up to $100,000.

Only the person named in the mortgage note can take the interest deduction. If you help someone by making their mortgage payment, neither of you gets a tax deduction.

Points paid to get a loan ordinarily can be deducted when paid by the buyer. A point is equal to one percent of the amount of the loan. Points paid when refinancing are currently deductible only to the extent the loan proceeds are used for home improvements. Otherwise, you must deduct the points pro rata over the life of the loan.

Expenses for maintenance items like repairs and painting can't be deducted unless you use part of your home to actively run your business. Improvements and additions, however, increase the tax basis of your home. Basis is the amount you subtract from the sales price to determine your profit or loss when you sell your home. Keep good records on the cost of all improvements to your home.

You may be able to postpone taxes on your profit when you sell your principal residence. You must purchase a new principal residence of the same or greater value within two years of selling your old one. If you are age 55 or older and qualify, your taxes are completely forgiven on a gain of up to $125,000, once in your lifetime. A loss on a home sale is not deductible.

Exercise Caution With Stimulant Laxatives

There are five types of laxative products commonly used to prevent and/or correct irregularity or bowel movement problems. These types include the saline laxatives, bulk-forming laxatives, stool softeners, lubricant laxatives, and the stimulants.

Stimulant laxatives, as their name implies, stimulate or irritate specific nerves located in the intestinal tract. The stimulation usually results in bowel movements within 6 to 12 hours, although some stimulants, such as bisacodyl suppositories, may produce results in 15 to 20 minutes. One of the most common uses of stimulant laxatives is to prepare patients for surgery or x-rays by evacuating the large intestines.

Stimulant laxatives which are extracted from plants include cascara sagrada, rhubarb, and senna. Rhubarb and senna contain an acid which causes an acid urine to turn yellow or brown and an alkaline urine to turn red or violet. The discoloration usually is harmless. A popular over-the-counter stimulant laxative is phenolphthalein. This laxative is sold in the form of candy and chewing gum. Excessive use can decrease calcium and vitamin D absorption. Excessive use of stimulant laxatives can result in severe cramping, dehydration, decreased absorption of protein, and a loss of certain body minerals, which can result in disturbances in metabolism.
